Overview

The Global Fund to fight AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria is a partnership organisation between governments, civil society and the private sector. It raises and invests finances to support in country programmes to accelerate the end of AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria.

Achievements and progress

- The Global Fund ranks in the 'very good' category for the first time, achieving its best score with 86.8%.
- It achieves full score on all indicators published to IATI, with the only exception of disaggregated budgets.
- It is the best performer on providing basic and performance data as well as activity-related documents on its development activities.

Challenges and room for improvement

- Country strategies is the only indicator of the Global Fund's organisation file that is not published to the IATI Registry.
- At the activity-level, subnational locations, tenders and activity budgets are not published to the IATI Registry.
- Disaggregated budget is available only for one year ahead.

Recommendations

- The Global Fund should aim for full implementation of the IATI Standard at both the organisation and activity levels.
- The Global Fund should update its Information Disclosure Policy to reflect best practice on independent appeals processes.
- It should maximise the benefits of its transparency efforts and develop a strategy to promote internal and external use of its data with all relevant stakeholders in particular at country level.
