United Nations Development Programme (UNDP)

Operating in around 170 countries, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) is one of the world's largest multilateral development agencies and aims to eradicate poverty. The UNDP became an IATI member and first published to the IATI Registry in November 2011. Since 2013, UNDP has co-hosted the IATI Secretariat as part of a consortium with Sweden, UNOPS, Ghana and Development Initiatives.

SCORE: 95.4   POSITION: 2 / 45

Very Good ▬

2016: Very Good   2014: Very Good   2013: Very Good

Due to a methodology change after 2016, rankings are not directly comparable with 2018

Organisational planning and commitments	Finance and budgets
14.3 / 15	23.9 / 25

Project attributes	Joining-up development data
19.8 / 20	19.1 / 20

Performance
18.2 / 20

UNDP has maintained its 'very good' aid transparency levels.

UNDP publishes on a monthly basis to the IATI Registry.

It publishes all indicators in the IATI format and performs well on almost all indicators.

UNDP is among the top five performers for all components of the Index, ranking second for finance and budgets, performance-related indicators, as well as project attributes.

While performing well in the overall components, there is still room for improvement for project budgets, results and reviews and evaluations, as well as for contracts, and tenders.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- UNDP should focus on improving its publication of detailed project budgets, project procurement information, as well as project reviews and evaluations.
- To demonstrate the impact of transparency on development work, UNDP should take responsibility to promote the use of the data they publish: internally, to promote coordination and effectiveness; and externally, to explore online and in-person feedback loops, including at country-level.